

Randy J. Williams Commits to Georgia Southern

Catcher Randy J. Williams decided to continue his baseball playing career at Georgia Southern University on Wednesday afternoon. Williams, who prepped at Lowndes County High School in Valdosta, decided Georgia Southern was the best place for him. Williams came on strong at the end of last season earning All-Tournament Team honors for his performance at the state playoffs, and subsequently was invited to the Philadelphia Phillies pre-draft workout. Coach Hemmings said, "Randy has developed into the complete player since signing with us two years ago. Randy was an unknown when he left Lowndes and now is regarded as one of the best catch and throw guys in the southeast." Randy carries a grade point average of 3.2 and has proven not only to be a great player on the field, but more importantly a great person off of it. Coach Hemmings added, "Randy is not only a great player, but a great person. I wish I had Randy for two more years because I will not see him at the peak of his career. Randy will leave Andrew and be remembered as one of the best catchers that I have coached in the past 6 seasons."
