Ghosts and goblins turned out for family-friendly fun fright night on the Square

CUTHBERT, GA. – As the daylight faded and the city street lights erupted into sparkling luminaries, Andrew College put on a fun “Tiger Fest” Halloween show for area children and their families. The event, held on Friday, Oct. 21, brought the city square to life with ghosts, goblins, superheros, princesses, ninjas, and firemen. Candy, hot dogs, scary movies, costume contests and face painting were all available throughout the evening.

Whitney Mosley, dean of student affairs at Andrew College, said “It was good to see the community join us for some Halloween fun. Our students, dressed in costume, had a great time sharing in the festivities and passing out candy, painting faces and playing games. I’m glad we were able to offer this event. We already have new ideas for next year!”

#1 – The cobweb laden trees created a spooky environment for the festival. The crowd reacted enthusiastically while watching the costume contest.

#2 – Andrew College Resident Assistants Brett Ammos (alias, Superman and Clark Kent), Valdosta; and Sherry Lammons, Pelham, man a candy table at the festival.

#3 - Student Government Association President, Ayreon “Shay” Oliver, Columbus; and SGA Vice President, Jaylan Ogeltree, McDonough, are decked out as soap bubbles and a luffah sponge.
