Mystery develops in downtown Cuthbert

CUTHBERT, GA. – Andrew College’s theatre department brought mystery, murder and intrigue to Cuthbert with their audience-interactive murder mystery performance, “Murder in the Square” on March 17. The audience traveled to two different downtown locations as the drama unfolded.

Guests began their journey in a coffee house where they enjoyed live music in addition to a delicious buffet, continued through a sorority house where they met the detective, followed by an outdoor garden where they witnessed the crime scene and gathered clues from the performers to try and solve the mystery. Theatre goers were also able to interact with the players as they gathered information.

The play was written and directed by Deborah Liss-Green, director of the theatre program. She said, “I am so pleased at the reception to our work as well as by the support of the administration and the community.” Musical direction was provided by Dr. Daniel Kolan and two faculty members, Katie Dodrill and Dr. Robert Korbawi, appeared alongside theatre and music students.
